PROTECTING OUR CHILDREN

Dear Friend,

The NDP-Liberal coalition government in Ottawa has recently introduced its most recent legislation to protect Canadians on the internet. They failed to pass the legislation two previous times and are taking a third swing at the bat. Unfortunately, like the two previous attempts, their current legislation misses the mark.

That is why Conservatives have put forward our own alternative to protect children from online pornography. Just as we require age verification for the purchase of alcohol, tobacco, cannabis, or gambling, our legislation Bill S-210 proposes to protect children from pornography through age verification.

It is already illegal for children under the age of 18 to access pornography in Canada. However, the internet has been the “wild west” for over 30 years, being completely open to our youth.

Studies have shown internet pornography correlates directly to addictive behaviour amongst young adults and can have long-lasting, harmful effects on health and relationships.

So, just as it is a legal requirement to verify a person’s age before they can view buy alcohol or tobacco, it should also be a requirement to verify a person’s age online.

We will do this without requiring any type of digital ID, as other methods of age verification can be used.

We are also cognizant of privacy concerns, so if an adult is concerned about their privacy while accessing pornography, either physically or online, they can certainly choose not to access that pornography and protect their physical/digital footprint that way.

Spike the Hike: Axe the Tax

After eight years of Justin Trudeau's leadership, life has never been more expensive. Trudeau's carbon tax has driven up the cost of everything, forcing families to choose between heating their homes, putting food on the table or filling up their car.

It's clear that Canadians need relief, not another painful tax increase. Yet, on April 1st, Justin Trudeau's desperately out-of-touch government hiked the carbon tax again by 23%. This is just the latest part of his plan to quadruple this tax over the next six years, even though it has had no effect on lowering GHG emissions.

While Trudeau and his radical Environment Minister lie to Canadians about their carbon tax rebates, the independent Parliamentary Budget Officer has been clear that most Canadian families will pay more in carbon tax than they receive in the rebate.

This year, Trudeau's carbon tax will cost families in Saskatchewan $525 above whatever rebate they may receive back from the government.

Seventy percent of Canadians oppose this tax hike. Seventy percent of provincial Premiers, including the Saskatchewan Premier, have also joined with Common Sense Conservatives in demanding that Trudeau scraps this unnecessary increase.

Common Sense Conservatives believe that Liberal and NDP members of Parliament must answer for this tax increase in the House. That's why Conservatives have used every opportunity in Parliament to "spike the hike".

Common Sense Conservatives will not stop calling for votes and debate in the House of Commons, as well as launching a massive pressure campaign on the Trudeau Government outside the House, until we can spike Trudeau's April Fools' tax hike for good.

Liberal and NDP members of Parliament must listen to their constituents and vote with Conservatives to bring home lower prices for everyone.
